

Construction for Missions School Application Letter

(Basic Construction Technology School)

DATES

3rd October 2010 - 25th March 2011

OVERVIEW

The school of Know How, Can Do!! A Discipleship Training School is a prerequisite for this school.

Practical construction and maintenance skills for frontline missions.

There are increasing opportunities to be involved in construction or maintenance projects that assist missionaries, humanitarian organisations and non-profit organisations.

The lecture phase of this school will combine practice, theory and workshop times, in the field of construction and related topics. Lecture phase will also include theory and practice of spiritual disciplines to provide opportunities for further spiritual development in the lives of participants.

The curriculum is designed to encourage participants to develop a broad working knowledge of:

- Hand and power tools
- Building materials
- Site set out
- Site safety and first aid
- Building design
- Solid masonry and cement systems
- Wood and steel framing systems

Other topics included:

- Basic electrical and plumbing systems
- Alternative energy sources
- Basic small motor maintenance

The outreach phase of the school will for 12 weeks from the end of December until the middle of March. The outreach will provide opportunities for participants to put in to practice what they have learned during lecture phase. There will also be the opportunity to partner with other organizations that serve in the area of construction and maintenance. Outreach locations will generally be in Australasia, a developing nation or in a disaster area.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND CfMS?

Anyone who has completed a Discipleship Training School and is interested in impacting the lives of individuals and/or communities through the use of their practical skills and abilities.

The school will provide each student with an excellent foundation of both practical and theory skills in the field of construction and related topics. Participants will also receive teaching and opportunities to practise spiritual disciplines in the areas of Worship, Prayer & Intercession and Bible Study. The DTS is a prerequisite for this school. You will obtain 12 credits with the UofN.
